CAPE’s 20th Anniversary Celebration
Successful and Heartwarming:
Reflecting on 20 Years of Service

As those of you who participated in last summer’s anniversary celebration know, the year 2000 marked CAPE’s 20th year serving the Asian-Pacific Community. The year 2000 was very successful even though we are all slowly recovering from the Asian economic crisis. Last year over 300 scholars, students and professionals participated in our many workshops. The participants hailed from six countries: Japan, Hong Kong/China, Korea, the Philippines, Thailand and the United States. CAPE was proud to be able to award 31 scholarships to participants from Japan, Korea, the Philippines and the USA. The ability to help so many students was due to the overwhelming support by alumni and friends in our special anniversary year.

The anniversary celebration was a great success. Over 240 participants from seven countries shared in the joy of our celebrations. This included more than 30 alumni who came from Asia to share in the festivities. In addition to our normal workshops, we held three special anniversary programs featuring distinguished scholars as special guest speakers. For the American Studies Forum, Dr. Michael Cowan, prize-winning professor of American Studies from the University of California, Santa Cruz gave many enlightened lectures on the theme of “Facing the Past, Facing the Future: America at the Start of the 21st Century.”

The celebration culminated with a gala anniversary dinner held at the Sheraton Waikiki Hotel. Three hundred and forty guests were in attendance. It was a truly memorable evening and a chance to acknowledge the people who have contributed so much to CAPE’s quality programs and continuously expanding services. There were many honored guests present and heartwarming speeches given. A wonderful time was had by all as we basked in the spirit of aloha our friendship provided us.

In addition to the success of our anniversary series, we at CAPE are also very pleased with the success of our spring “Asia Today” series and fall “Language and Culture Seminar.” Over 300 community members who wished to expand their global knowledge and cultural horizons attended these seminars. The 14th Annual Asia-Pacific Studies Forum focused on Tibet, Bhutan, Mongolia and Japan. These seminars dealt with 20th century history as well as possible glimpses of the future. The 11th Annual Language and Culture Seminar gave participants a chance to learn more about Cambodia, Nepal and Russia. During each three-hour seminar, participants learned about culture, linguistics and practical language for social encounters. Best of all, fees were waived for Hawaii residents allowing access to the programs to all community members.

CAPE’s flagship program, the American Studies Forum, was held as part of the 20th anniversary programs, from August 2 - 10, 2000 and featured “Facing the Past, Facing the Future: America at the Start of the 21st Century” led by Dr. Michael Cowan. The topic was timely since we are at the dawn of the new millennium and celebrating CAPE’s 20th anniversary. The forum was attended by 29 participants from Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Thailand and the United States. All in attendance found the forum series stimulating and enriching.

CAPE also had its usual wide variety of programs for Asian teachers. There were four programs for Asian Pacific teachers of English. Participants came from Japan, Korea, the Philippines and Thailand. The 27th Workshop for Teachers of English held August 1 - 11, 2001 featured “New Directions in Language Teaching,” as part of the anniversary programs. This anniversary workshop was attended by 31 teachers of English including many alumni from Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Thailand and China. There were three additional workshops for teachers of English. The workshop held January 3 - 30 was supported by the Yongok Foundation and attended by 20 English teachers from Korea. The workshop held January 10 - 22 had nine English teachers attending; and the workshop July 25 - August 20 was attended by 20 English teachers from Inchon City, Korea. Participants in all of the teaching workshops learned valuable new skills and were able to keep abreast of recent trends in English language teaching.

Several sessions of the extremely popular English programs for college, high school and middle school students were offered. There were three programs held for college students from Korea and Japan. During the summer session, the students had the opportunity to live in dormitories at the University of Hawaii and made many friends who are native English speakers. There was also one combined session for high school and middle school students and one session specifically for high school students. During both sessions, students had the opportunity to attend an American school for a day, a valuable cultural opportunity. The students not only learned English, but also returned home with broadened cultural perspectives.

Finally, a number of workshops were offered that related to the healthcare profession. Twenty participants from Korea participated in the CAPE Workshop for Clinical Nurse Specialists where they learned about current nursing issues and trends in the United States, and visited area hospitals. There were two sessions of the ever-popular International Program for Nursing Students. Eighteen nursing students from Korea and Japan participated in this unique program. The students studied the English language as well as American culture, toured many area health facilities and met their American peers - students at the University of Hawaii School of Nursing. The Fifth Workshop on Mental Health also took place. Participants learned about current issues in their profession and toured several area mental health-care facilities. The Eighth Eldercare workshop was also a success. Students visited a variety of health facilities that care for the elderly and attended lectures about many important issues in eldercare. Finally, CAPE is pleased to announce that the first ever Women’s Health Seminar, attended by 17 nurses and nurse educators from Korea, was a great success. Participants learned about healthcare for women of all ages. Many seminars on health and exercise were spread throughout the program. The workshop participants were very happy with the workshop. Hopefully it will become one of CAPE’s regularly scheduled workshops.

None of these programs would have been possible without the generosity of our donors. We are grateful to the many individuals who have rendered unconditional support, moral as well as material. Mahalo for all of the contributions that help CAPE continue to offer quality programming and promote increased global awareness. A special thanks is extended to all donors who helped CAPE grow and celebrate our 20th anniversary.

Because of our donors, we are able to offer merit scholarships to many CAPE participants, researchers and selected departments. In total, we were able to award 31 fellowships and grants to people from five countries.

We must also thank all of the host families who opened up their homes to our students. The host families provide students with valuable learning and sharing experiences. Participants emerge from the home stay more culturally enriched and grateful for the kindness of these special families. Mahalo for your aloha.

Finally, we wish to offer a mahalo to all of those who have come from afar to join us in Hawaii, even for a brief visit. A special thanks goes to all who flew in from far and near to help us celebrate our anniversary. Another mahalo goes to all of our workshop participants. We hope you have learned a lot and taken home many fond memories of your stay in Hawaii. We at CAPE envision another 20 years of progress. We hope to produce more sensitive, globally aware citizens of the world and will continue to strive to enhance Asia-Pacific harmony.

Dr. Yoo Visits Japan and Korea

From April 6 to May 1, 2000, Dr. Yoo journeyed to Japan and Korea to promote CAPE’s many programs and to establish and re-establish institutional ties with universities in Asia. Dr. Yoo met alumni, updated them on current CAPE programs and informed them about events for the 20th anniversary celebration to be held in Honolulu in the coming summer. The trip was very beneficial for CAPE and a resounding success.

Dr. Yoo began by visiting Kumamoto and Beppu, Japan where he met alumni and visited several universities to educate them about available CAPE programs. Professor Kazutoshi Morinaga helped Jai-Ho Yoo visit selected universities in Beppu and Oita City.

Next, Dr. Yoo visited the cities of Taejon, Daegu, Pusan, Kwanguju and Seoul in Korea. He had the opportunity to meet with many CAPE alumni in each city. Some former participants even drove many hours from homes in faraway cities just to join the alumni meetings. The special alumni reunion meetings were attended by 20 in Taejon, 15 in Daegu, 20 in Pusan, 10 in Kwanguju, and 50 in Seoul. The alumni were brought up to date on the many anniversary programs and celebrations to be held in the summer to commemorate CAPE’s 20th anniversary. The meetings were all very joyful occasions where many
The 20th Annual American Studies Forum

Facing the Past, Facing the Future: America at the Start of the 21st Century

This year’s American Studies forum was accompanied by a special anniversary forum in order to celebrate CAPE’s 20th anniversary. The featured topic was: “Facing the Past, Facing the Future: America at the Start of the 21st Century.” This was an appropriate topic for the new millennium as it gave occasion to ponder the past and the future at the start of the 21st century. Twenty-nine participants from Japan, Korea, Thailand and the Philippines attended the forum. This number includes almost a dozen CAPE alumni, including Dr. Hiroko Sato, former President of the Japanese Association of American Studies.

This year’s featured speaker was Michael Cowan, Professor of American Studies and Literature at the University of California Santa Cruz, Chair of the University of California’s University-wide Academic Senate, recipient of the Bose-Pierson Prize for Distinguished Contributions to the Field of American Studies. Michael Cowan and other distinguished scholars gave lectures on a number of thought-provoking topics in the field of American Studies. Some of these topics were: America and the Global Society, The Electronic Revolution: All The World’s a Website, New and Old(er) Americans: The Challeges of Diversity, American Democracy in an Age of Sound bites, Image Upon Image: The Role of Mass Media, Is There Time to be Thoughtful about the Future? What Place Education, and The American Future as Seen from Abroad. Dr. Deane Neubauer, a scholar and professor from the University of Hawaii’s Department of Political Science, presented on: Structure of American Society: Effects of Globalization on the U.S.; Changes in the Nature of Politics and Political Campaigning; and Growing Income Inequality.

The scholars had the afternoons free to do individual research or sightsee. Many of them took this opportunity to exchange ideas and make new friends. The alumni participants also rekindled old friendships with former classmates. This spirit of friendship and the exchange of ideas were highlighted at the CAPE anniversary dinner at the Sheraton Hotel in Waikiki, which all participants were welcome to attend. CAPE would like to extend a warm Mahalo to Dr. Michael Cowan and Dr. Deane Neubauer for their wonderful lectures. The students all returned home filled with new knowledge and predictions about what the next century may bring.

Participants from various professions and academic disciplines joined CAPE at the 11th Language and Culture Seminar, Fall 2000

Dr. Miriam Stark

Dr. Gregory G. Maskarinec

The 11th Annual Language and Culture Seminar focused on Cambodia, Nepal and Russia. More than 150 members of the community attended the free workshops in the hopes of increasing their knowledge about the culture and language of Asia.

The seminar design was unique in its dual focus on culture and language. Lecturers provided an overview of the history of the country and its peoples, characteristics of interpersonal relationships, social customs, gift giving and cross-cultural encounters. Students also learned basic “survival” expressions they can use if they visit or meet someone from that country.

This year’s faculty included Dr. Chhany Sak-Humphry and Dr. Miriam Stark, presenters on Cambodia; Dr. Sarita MacLeod and Dr. Gregory G. Maskarinec, presenters on Nepal; and Dr. James Brown, the presenter on Russia. CAPE would like to say mahalo to all the lecturers for helping enhance the global awareness of the participants.

The 14th Annual Asia-Pacific Studies Forum - “Asia Today” Series

The 14th annual “Asia Today” series focused on Tibet, Bhutan, Mongolia and Japan. The free seminars were attended by 150 community members interested in learning more about Asian countries. The focus of the first session was ancient cultures and contemporary realities while the second dealt with Asian economies.

The second session concentrated on Asian economies. “Prospects for Economic Integration in Asia” was presented by Dr. Deane Neubauer. Dr. Marie Thorsten, spoke about “Inventing Japan: Reflections on U.S.-Japan Cultural Relations During the Trade Friction Era.”

Mahalo to all of the lecturers for all of the fascinating information they presented. The community response was very enthusiastic and all in attendance learned a great deal.
The 26th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English
January 2 - 30, 2000

Once again, CAPE’s ever-popular workshop for Asian-Pacific teachers of English was a success. This year 20 Korean middle school English teachers attended the month-long program in Hawaii. For the ninth consecutive year, the event was financially underwritten by a generous contribution from Mr. Chul-Woo Yang, the President of Kyohaksa Publishing Company and long-time CAPE supporter. The funds were made available through the Yong-Ok Scholarship Foundation.

The comprehensive teacher workshop features a multi-faceted design. Teachers participate in many intensive workshop sessions as well as observational sessions at many area schools. These sessions give teachers the opportunity to see how their American counterparts go about English language instruction. This year teachers were able to observe and communicate with their American peers at Lincoln Elementary School, Lunalilo Elementary School, Dole Intermediate School, Kawanakoa Intermediate School and Kaimuki High School. In addition, teachers visited the Punahou School for a special observational training session at the Wo International Center. As the Korean and American teachers communicated and shared ideas, they both were able to broaden their global perspectives.

The accompanying workshops gave the teachers an overview of new developments in the field of EFL. Teachers took courses in Micro Teaching, taught by Yoneko Narita, and EFL Skills Training, taught by Loryn Gum. They attended practical mini-lessons on teaching English listening, speaking, writing and reading skills as well as using the computer in English language teaching. More theory-based lessons were given in EFL methodology and Psycho-sociolinguistics in language teaching. All were presented by Dr. Graham Crookes, Dr. Roderick A. Jacobs and Dr. Richard Schmidt, distinguished scholars in the field of EFL and faculty members of the Second Language Studies Program at the University of Hawai‘i at Manoa. Through broad exposure across the field, teachers were able to keep abreast of recent research and developments.

Supplementing the workshop courses were lessons about American Culture, taught by Jed Lovingfoss. In addition, special lectures were given by: Dr. Edward J. Schultz, Director, Center for Korean Studies at the University of Hawaii; Mr. Donald Kim, Chairman, R.M. Towill Corp.; Dr. Dina Yoshimi, Associate Professor, Department of East Asian Languages and Literature at the University of Hawaii; and Dr. Jai Ho-Yoo, President of CAPE. Outside of the classroom, students participated in numerous fieldwork activities that allowed them to visit many sites around Oahu and learn about the unique culture of Hawaii.

Outside of the classroom, the teachers were provided with an invaluable opportunity to learn more about American culture. All of the teachers participated in a week-long home stay with an American family. During their stay, they became part of the family. They shared meals, conversation and leisure activities with the family. The teachers learned about many typical customs and activities that go on in an American home. Of course, this enriching experience could never have happened without the warmth and hospitality of the following host families: The Akiyama, Altweis, Brossy, Lin, McClaren, Mowat, Muraoka, Nakamura, Sanburn and White families.

CAPE would also like to offer a warm Mahalo to the following school administrators who helped immensely in arranging the school visitations: Mr. Richard Anbe, Principal of Kawanakoa Intermediate School; Ms. Evangeline Inoue, Principal of Dole Intermediate School; Mr. Richard Matsumoto, Principal of Lincoln Elementary School; Ms. Kathleen Mau, Principal of Lunalilo Elementary School; Mr. Gary Oyama, Principal of Kaimuki High School and Ms. Hope Staab, Director of the Wo International Center at Punahou School.

As a final note, this workshop would not continue to be the success it is year after year if it were not for our outstanding teaching faculty. A special Mahalo is extended to: Dr. Graham Crookes, Dr. Richard Schmidt, Dr. Roderick A. Jacobs, Ms. Loryn Gum, Mr. Jed Lovingfoss and Ms. Yoneko Narita. To everyone mentioned above, and any we have forgotten, Mahalo on behalf of the Korean English teachers. Thank you for once again helping to make our workshop experience a success.

January 10 - 22, 2000

English teachers at the Workshop for Teachers of English with Dr. Roderick Jacobs and Dr. Richard Schmidt, January 2000.

Although shorter, this workshop was no less comprehensive than the concurrent Korean middle school teachers’ workshop. Nine high school, middle school and college teachers from Korea attended this workshop, which was sponsored by CAPE in cooperation of the University of Hawaii Second Language Studies Department.

The teachers participated in a diverse range of courses as well as several observational school visits. In addition to a Micro Teaching class and complementary lecture in Teaching Technique, students were given lessons in: EFL Methodology; Teaching EFL Skills; Psycho-Linguistics and Language Teaching; Teaching English Reading Skills; Teaching Writing Skills and Teaching Listening and Speaking Skills. The facilitators for these courses included: Dr. Graham Crookes, Dr. Roderick A. Jacobs, Dr. Richard Schmidt, Ms. Yoneko Narita and Ms. Loryn Gum.

Teachers also had the opportunity to visit Central Intermediate School and Roosevelt High. During their visits, teachers were able to observe classroom teaching firsthand and meet their American counterparts. A special Mahalo goes out to Ms. Penelope Tom, Principal of Central Intermediate School and Mr. Dennis Hokama, Principal of Roosevelt High School for their help in arranging the observational visits.

Although their stay was short and full of academic study, participants found some time to experience many of the wonderful cultural activities Hawaii has to offer. They visited scenic sites such as Hanuama Bay, historical sites, such as Iolani Palace and the Punchbowl National Cemetery, and cultural and educational sites such as the Polynesian Cultural Center.
The Seventh Workshop for Elementary English Teachers was an informative session enjoyed by all. Ms. Mi-Na Cho and Ms. Weon Kyoung Lee, the two teachers in attendance, received a unique brand of individual attention. They took intensive classes in Teaching Techniques, taught by Ms. Yoneko Narita and Ms. Loryn Gum. The two women also were able to observe classes and meet faculty at Aliiolani Elementary School. In addition, they participated in special sessions given by Dr. Jai-Ho Yoo, president of CAPE, and Dr. Dina R. Yashimi, president of the Department of East Asian Languages and Literature.

We offer a special Mahalo to all involved in this workshop, especially: Mrs. Haroldeen Wakida, principal of Aliiolani Elementary School; Dr. Dina R. Yashimi; and CAPE’s own lecturers, Loryn Gum and Yoneko Narita.

The 27th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English
New Directions in Language Teaching: August 1 - 11, 2000
Anniversary Program: August 7, 8, 9, 2000

The 27th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English and special anniversary program segment were attended by 31 participants from all across the region including half a dozen alumni. Teachers from Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Thailand and China attended lectures based around the theme of New Directions in Language Teaching. Presentations were given by a number of distinguished scholars in the field of English as a Second Language and included participant presentation and panel discussions.

The featured speaker was Jack C. Richards, a visiting professor from the South East Asian Ministers of Education Organization Regional Language Center. He is a prolific English language teaching materials writer and author of numerous publications on English language teacher training. Richards gave lectures on New Directions in Language Teaching and Strategies for Professional Development and conducted an open session for participants. Other lectures were given by Dr. Richard Schmidt on Teaching ESL Skills; Motivating Foreign Language Learners; Theories, Evidence and Good Practice in TESOL; Psycho-Sociolinguistics and Language Teaching; and Teaching Listening and Speaking Skills. Dr. Graham Crookes also presented several topics including: Resources for EFL Teachers: Finding Texts, Research, Materials, Keypals, and Others; Teaching English Reading Skills; and Testing and Evaluation in EFL. Dr. Roderick Jacobs also presented several topics: Language, Culture, and Cognition: The Many “Worlds” of Reality and Unreality; Teaching Writing Skills; and Language, Culture and Cognition: Some Basic Issues. Dr. Craig Chaudron taught Classroom Research for Language Teachers: Current Findings. A special feature of the workshop was the participant presentation given by Professor Myung-Jai Kang on Teaching English Grammar Through Conversation to Korean Young Adults. Finally, one of the highlights of the lecture series was a panel discussion with Dr. Jack Richards, Dr. Jacobs, Dr. Schmidt, Dr. Chaudron and Dr. Crookes in which participants had the opportunity to interact with the speakers through open-ended discussion.

While the participants attended workshops every morning, they had afternoons free to study, relax or explore Oahu. Many chose to interact with their culturally diverse classmates which led to a lively atmosphere. Some alumni had the chance to revive old friendships with other alumni. All of the participants enjoyed CAPE’s 20th anniversary dinner in Waikiki.

CAPE would like to send a heartfelt mahalo to all of the distinguished lecturers who helped make this workshop so vibrant and informative. CAPE is grateful to Jack Richards; Richard Schmidt and Graham Crookes, professors in the Second Language Studies Department (formerly ESL) at the University of Hawaii as well as, Craig Chaudron, professor and Graduate Chair of the department; Roderick Jacobs, professor and Interim Dean of the Colleges of Languages, Linguistics and Literature at the University of Hawaii; and Myung-Jai Kang, professor in the Department of Practical English, Yeojoo Institute of Technology, Korea. Thank you all for helping to make our anniversary program so enjoyable and intellectually stimulating.

Summer 2000, 10 elementary and 10 middle school English teachers from Incheon, Korea participated in the 27th Workshop for Teachers of English. The teachers were financially supported by the Incheon Office of Education. The workshop was specially designed to develop the teachers’ skills in teaching English entirely in the target language. This was accomplished through special courses and visits to area schools.

The teachers took two courses that showed them different English Language teaching methods, as well as a course about American culture. The first course, Teaching Techniques, taught by Mr. Steve Jacques gave the teachers new ideas about teaching methods. The second course, Teaching English Through English, taught by Ms. Karen Hile, instructed teachers in techniques to lead class sessions in English without using the students native language. Finally, the teachers’ experience was rounded out with American Culture, taught by Mr. Jed Lovingfoss.

In addition to course work, the teachers also had the opportunity to visit an area school. The elementary school teachers attended an observation and orientation at Puuhale Elementary School while the middle school teachers went to an observation and orientation at the Honolulu Waldorf School. The teachers all enjoyed the experience and expanded their cultural horizons by seeing the inner-workings of an American school.

CAPE would like to extend a special mahalo to everyone who made this program a success, especially Superintendent Byung-Sei Yoo from Inchon, Korea for his special support and continued interest in CAPE. Also, CAPE would like to thank the course lecturers: Karen Hile, Steven Cowan, a distinguished American Studies scholar from the University of California Santa Cruz; Anita Hodges, Administrative Coordinator, College of Arts and Humanities, University of Hawaii; and Robert Vaughan, Instructor in the Department of American Studies at the University of Hawaii. The students all found the presentations to be very enriching and stimulating. They returned home very impressed with the program and with an increased awareness of American culture.

While in Hawaii, the participants were also able to experience some uniquely Hawaiian culture with visits to Iolani Palace and the Polynesian Cultural Center. In addition, participants were given the option of touring the Big Island (the island of Hawaii). Participants also visited The State Capitol, Waikiki, Arizona Memorial at Pearl Harbor and Sea Life Park. Moreover, the participants celebrated CAPE’s anniversary at the 20th anniversary dinner at the Sheraton Waikiki Hotel.

CAPE would like to thank all of its lecturers and distinguished scholars. In addition, a very special and heartfelt mahalo is extended to Mr. Thomas Park, Director of the DukSung Foundation, for taking the initiative in establishing educational ties between DukSung University and CAPE. We at CAPE hope the exchange will encourage the participation of more DukSung students in any of our wide variety of programs.

The CAPE Cultural Studies Workshop

The Nursing and Healthcare Forum

Nursing and Healthcare in the 21st Century

Twenty participants from DukSung University in Korea came to Hawaii to participate in The CAPE Cultural Studies Workshop from August 7-14, 2000. Both faculty and administrative staff learned about American culture in this special workshop session. This workshop was particularly significant for CAPE and DukSung University as it established a relationship between the two institutions.

The course on cultural studies focused on cultural perspectives in the U.S.; cultural traits of Americans, Americans and Global Society, and Family and Education. There were three speakers: Dr. Michael Cowan, a distinguished American Studies scholar from the University of California Santa Cruz; Anita Hodges, Administrative Coordinator, College of Arts and Humanities, University of Hawaii; and Robert Vaughan, Instructor in the Department of American Studies at the University of Hawaii. The students all found the presentations to be very enriching and stimulating. They returned home very impressed with the program and with an increased awareness of American culture.

The Nursing and Healthcare Forum

Nursing and Healthcare in the 21st Century

Nurse educators and nurses in the Nursing and Healthcare Forum with Dr. Barbara Kooker, August 2000

The Nursing and Healthcare Forum took place as part of CAPE’s 20th anniversary celebration from August 6-10, 2000. The theme, Nursing and Healthcare in the 21st Century, attracted eight nurses and nurse educators from Japan and Korea. Participants attended lectures on telehealth, mental health, geriatrics, home care and leadership.

The lectures covered many important, current issues in nursing. Deane Neubauer presented on telehealth. In the area of mental health, “Clinically Driven Utilization Management in Public Mental Health: Oxyornon or Best Practice,” was presented by Constance Ching. To cover the topic of geriatrics, Valisa Saunders presented “Post-Diagnosis Dementia and Use of Geriatric Nurse Specialists in LTC Settings” while Cullen T. Hayashida presented “Long-term Care Financing in the U.S.: The Advantages and Disadvantages of Several Models.” Jean M. Nohara and Rose Anne Poyzer presented “Home Care: A Backward and Forward Look.” As for leadership, Rosanne C. Harrington presented “Nursing in the 21st Century: Looking from the Past to the Future.” “Leadership in Nursing Education” was presented by Barbara Kooker, and “Public Health Nursing Leadership: Meeting the Challenges of the 21st Century” was presented by Ruth Ota. Additional topics, “In the Afterglow of Managed Care” and “Is There a Place for Traditional/Complementary Medicine?” were presented by D. William Wood.

In addition to attending lectures, participants were able to visit selected health care facilities where they could observe approaches to the treatment of various healthcare problems. These sites included Honolulu Club House (a mental health facility), PacMed (a home healthcare provider), One Kalakaua Senior Living, Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children, The Queen’s Medical Center and Waikiki Health Center. Participants enjoyed seeing firsthand how American health centers function.

Participants had afternoons free to enjoy some of the unique attractions Oahu has to offer, such as Iolani Palace, the Polynesian Cultural Center and Sea Life Park. Participants also attended CAPE’s 20th anniversary gala dinner at the Sheraton Waikiki Hotel.

CAPE would like to thank all the lecturers: Rosanne Harrigan, Barbara Kooker, Deane Neubauer and D. William Wood, all from the University of Hawaii at Manoa; from the Hawaii State Department of Health: Constance Ching, Nurse Consultant for the Mental Health Division and Ruth Ota, Chief of the Public Health Nursing Branch; Jean Nohara, Director of St. Francis Homecare Services; Cullen T.
Twenty-five participants came together to participate in The Eighth Eldercare Workshop this summer from July 17-27, 2000. The group was led and coordinated by Dr. Kwuy-Bun Kim, the Dean of the College of Nursing at Kyunghee University in Korea. While in Hawaii, the participants attended a variety of lectures on a wide range of subjects pertaining to their field. In addition, they had the chance to observe many of Oahu’s facilities for seniors. They were able to meet and interact with their Hawaiian counterparts. Through this exposure, they broadened their cross-cultural perspectives and increased their awareness of eldercare practices in the United States.

The observational visits took place in many sites around the island. The participants were able to visit Kuakini Medical Center, The Convalescent Center of Honolulu, The Rehabilitation Hospital of the Pacific, Maluhia Hospital, and Queens Medical Center. After observing all of the different sites, participants were provided with a broad overview of the types of services and facilities available in Hawaii.

In addition to the observational visits, the participants attended preceptorship training. This one of a kind program allows participants to shadow their American counterparts. They are able to get an insider’s view of how eldercare is practiced in American facilities as well as an invaluable opportunity to interact with patients and peers. The training took place at Kuakini Medical Center, the Convalescent Center of Honolulu, Maluhia Hospital and The Island Nursing Home.

The lectures attended by participants covered an array of topics pertinent to the field of eldercare. In order to ensure the participants achieved full comprehension of subject matter, they were given in English and interpreted by Dr. Hae-Sook Kim from the College of Nursing at Kyunghee University. Topics included: “Assessment of Elderly Patients,” presented by Verna Hanashiro; “Post-Diagnosis Dementia Care,” presented by Valisa Saunders; “Love, Intimacy and Sexuality in Old Age,” presented by Anthony Lenzer; “Home Care Services for the Elderly,” given by Jean Nohara; “Health Care and Issues in Hawaii,” presented by Dianne Ishida; and “Aging: Current Dilemmas, Future Issues,” presented by Anthony Lenzer. In addition, a special session was presented by Ruth Ota.

To round out the participants’ cultural experience, during their free time they enjoyed some of the many attractions Oahu has to offer. Some highlights were a circle island tour that took them to the Pali Lookout, Sea Life Park and Hanuama Bay; a visit to the Polynesian Cultural Center, the island’s most popular tourist attraction; and an Aloha dinner at the Treetops Restaurant at Paradise Park.

CAPE would like to say mahalo to all that helped this very special program be a success. CAPE would like to acknowledge Dr. Kwuy-Bun Kim, the group leader and coordinator and the interpreter, Dr. Hae-Sook Kim both from Kyunghee University, as well as the lecturers. In addition, CAPE would like to extend a mahalo to the following people who helped realize the observational and shadowing visits: Patty Allard, Administrator at Ka Punawai Ola (Nursing Home); Charlene Aoki, Director of Activities at the Convalescent Center of Honolulu; Doris Bowers, Director of Nursing at the Ka Punawai Ola (Nursing Home); Jay Duquette, Administrator at Maluhia Hospital; Violet Gonzales, Director of Nursing at Island Nursing Home; Verna Hanashiro, Manager of Educational Services at Kuakini Medical Center; Cullen T. Hayashida, Associate Director at Hawaii Health Systems Foundation; Barbara Idaeta, Administrator at One Kalakaua Senior Living; Paul J. Imamura, Director of Marketing and Admissions at Ka Punawai Ola; Tomoko Mohideen, International Patients Relations Assistant at the Queen’s Medical Center; Gerry Powers, Administrator of the Convalescent Center of Honolulu; Donda Spiker, Director of Public Relations at Kuakini Medical Center; and Virginia Tully from The Rehabilitation Hospital of the Pacific.

The Fifth Workshop on Mental Health Nursing

Participants in the Fifth Workshop on Mental Health Nursing with Dr. Charlotte Trotter, Dr. Bok-Nam Doh and Dr. Gil-Za Lee, July 2000.

Twenty Korean nurses and nurse educators came together in Hawaii to participate in the Fifth Workshop on Mental Health Nursing, February 14-21,2000. The group was led by Dr. Bok-Nam Doh and Dr. Gil-Za Lee. The objective of the workshop was to teach about and discuss a variety of current mental health care problems and issues. Participants familiarized themselves with American approaches to complex mental health care problems through observations and tours of several of Hawaii’s mental health facilities.

The workshop participants were awarded the opportunity to visit and tour the mental health facilities at The Club House, Kahi Mohala Behavioral Healthcare, Hawaii State Hospital and Queen’s Medical Center. At Hawaii State Hospital, the Korean nurses and educators were given a comprehensive orientation session followed by tours of the Psychosocial Rehabilitation Unit and the Occupational Therapy Unit. Afterwards, the participants had the opportunity to talk with nurses from the state hospital. Finally, the participants ate dinner with some of the patients and then did recreational activities with them. At Queen’s Medical Center, the workshop attendees were given a general tour of the hospital as well as tours of the in-patient psychiatric facilities and the day treatment center. This unique opportunity to see the inner workings of American mental health facilities allowed the Korean nurses and educators to broaden their global perspectives within their field and interact with their American peers.

In addition to the on-site observations, lectures that spanned the mental health field were given. Topics included: “Issues in Treating Dual-Diagnosed Patients: Community Care Services Program,” given by Joyce Ingram Chinn; “Inquiry Based Learning,” given by Jillian Inouye; and “Community Mental Health Centers: An Overview of the State of Hawaii,” by Kathy Yoshitomi.

While the lectures and visits kept the
The 5th CAPE Workshop for Clinical Nurse Specialists

In the summer of 2000, 20 clinical nurse specialists from Korea participated in CAPE’s workshop, August 2-12, 2000 which is specially designed for their field. The specialists attended lectures on a wide range of subjects related to their field. Participants also toured many area health facilities to observe the inner workings of American hospitals firsthand. In addition, students participated in the unique and highly successful preceptorship (or shadowing) training. The combination of these varied experiences helped give participants a more international perspective on nursing.

Participants enhanced their knowledge about nursing in the United States with on-site visits to The Queen’s Medical Center and One Kalakaua Senior Living and the preceptor activity. Many area health facilities hosted the preceptorship training, including: Hospice Hawaii, Kaiser Hospital, Kuakini Medical Center, Rehabilitation Hospital of the Pacific, St. Francis Medical Center and Tripler Army Medical Center. Participants were assigned to a nurse in one of the hospitals, and then shadowed the nurse as she went about her daily care giving. As always, this was a very enriching experience for the workshop participants as they learned more about life in an American hospital and interacted with their American counterparts.

Despite their busy schedule, workshop participants did have some time to relax and enjoy the natural beauty and some of the many attractions Oahu has to offer. Participants circled the island, stopping at pineapple and sugarcane fields and ended up at the famous Polynesian Cultural Center. The participants also experienced Pali Lookout, Sea Life Park, Hanauma Bay, The State Capitol, Iolani Palace, Punchbowl National Cemetery and of course Waikiki. The workshop participants were also lucky enough to be able to celebrate CAPE’s 20th anniversary at the dinner held at the Sheraton Waikiki Hotel.

CAPE would like to thank everyone who helped make The Fifth CAPE Workshop for Clinical Nurse Specialists a success. A warm mahalo goes out to the lecturers: Jana Hall, Manager of Telemedicine at The University of Hawaii School of Medicine and Director of Research at Kapiolani Health Center; Verna Hanashiro, Manager of Education Services at Kuakini Medical Center; Rosanne Harrigan, Dean and Professor, The School of Nursing at University of Hawaii at Manoa; Ruth Honda, Clinical Coordinator for Performance Improvement at The Queen’s Medical Center; Donna Ishida, Professor of Nursing at The University of Hawaii; Allen Morita, Clinical Nurse Specialist at The Queen’s Medical Center; Pat Nishimoto, Oncology Clinical Nurse Specialist at Tripler Army Medical Center; Ruth Ota, Chief of the Public Health Nursing Branch of the Hawaii State Department of Health; Tammy Stumbaugh, Genetic Counselor, Fetal Diagnostic Center, Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children; and D. William Wood, Professor and former Dean of the School of Public Health at the University of Hawaii.

An additional mahalo is extended to others who helped make the on-site visits and preceptorship training so successful. These special people include: Rose Mary Bucher, Vice President for Patient Services and Chief Nurse Executive at Kapiolani Medical Center; Laurie Chang, Senior Management Assistant at Kaiser Permanente; Sharon Keith, Instructor at Patient Care Consulting Services at the Queen’s Medical Center; Barbara Kooker, Associate Dean at The School of Nursing at the University of Hawaii; Stephen Kula, President and CPO, Hospice Hawaii; Tomoko Mohideen, International Patient Relations Assistant, The Queen’s Medical Systems; Michelle Stanley, Mental Health Supervisor, Adult Mental Health Division of The State Department of Health; and Kathy Yoshitomi, Chief of the Oahu Community Mental Health Center.

The First Women’s Health Seminar

CAPE is pleased to announce that The First Women’s Health Seminar held July 24-August 3, 2000, was a resounding success. A group of 17 participants from Korea, led and coordinated by Dr. Kyung-Hye Lee from Ewha Women’s University and Dr. Kwi-Ae Chung of Youngnam College of Science and Technology, came to Hawaii for this unique program. The workshop consisted of a variety of special lectures that covered many issues relevant to women’s health. Participants also attended observational visits in several area medical facilities.
The special lectures provided information on topics related to women of all ages as well as diet and exercise. The health-related topics presented in the lecture series were: “Promotion of Sexual Health Among Young Adults,” and “Promotion of Healthy Body Image Among Adolescents and Young Adults,” given by Kristen Scolly; “Single Room Maternity Care,” given by Mary Bucher; “Health Care Issues in Hawaii,” by Dianne Ishida; “Breast Health,” by Ines Bejarin Finin; “Seeking Help for Violence and Other Women’s Health Issues,” by Deborah Goebert; “Health Assessment,” by Dorthy Montoya; “Menopause Basics,” by Neal Winn; “Incontinence Therapy,” by Debbie Stafford; and “Memory Rejuvenation” by Leonie Walter. The diet and exercise-related topics were: “Yoga,” given by Valerie Hobensack; “Lifestyle Exercise and Nutrition,” given by Eileen Towata; “Reflexology and Aromatherapy Massage,” given by Melissa Yee; “Boxing Aerobics and Dance Moves,” by Gabriel Solis; and “Feldenkrais Method-Awareness Through Movement,” by Roger Ward. The lectures, which spanned the spectrum of the field of women’s health, gave participants a comprehensive introduction to trends and issues in the United States.

To supplement the lectures, participants visited four of Oahu’s health facilities. They were given tours of: Kapiolani Women’s Center, Kapiolani Medical Center, Queen’s Medical Center and One Kalakaua Senior Living. This provided participants with an overview of the types of health facilities available in Hawaii and an opportunity to meet their American colleagues within the field.

The workshop participants also had an opportunity to participate in several cultural, educational and leisure activities that took them all around the island. They visited the State Capitol, Iolani Palace, Sea Life Park, Hanuama Bay and The Polynesian Cultural Center. In addition, they attended a special Aloha dinner at Treetops Restaurant in Paradise Park.

CAPE would like to give a sincere mahalo to everyone who helped make The First Women’s Health Seminar a reality. Thanks to Dr. Kyung-Hye Lee and Dr. Kwi-Ae Chung who coordinated the program and served as group leaders. Mahalo to all the speakers: Deborah Goebert, Graduate Student in the Department of Psychology, Kristen Scolly, Health Education Coordinator, Health Services, and Dianne Ishida, Professor of Nursing from the University of Hawaii; Dorthy Motoyama, Former Director of Nursing Education at Kuakini Medical Center; from the Kapiolani Women’s Center: Gabriel Solis, Group Fitness Instructor and Personal Trainer, Leonie Walter Ph.D. in Educational Psychology, Debbie Stafford, Physical therapist, Ines Bejarin Finin, Clinical Nurses Specialist, Roger Ward, Feldenkrais teacher, Valerie Hobensack, Hatha Yoga Instructor and Melissa Yee, Licensed Massage Therapist; Eileen Towata, (Ph.D. in botany) Plant Food Specialist, Neoneko; and Neal Winn, M.D., Kapiolani Medical Center.

CAPE would also like to extend a mahalo to those who helped facilitate the on-site visitation. These helpers include: Suzanne Allen, Resource Coordinator, and Michelle Rudoy, Manager, Kapiolani Women’s Center; Susan Jones, Pediatric Nurse Educator, and Susan Young, Clinical Service Line Director, Kapiolani Medical Center; Barbara Ideta, Executive Director, One Kalakaua Senior Living; and Tomoko Mohideen, International Patient Relations Assistant, The Queen’s Medical Center. Thank you for your aloha and support.

The 27th International Program for College Students

The 27th International Program for College Students was held January 3-29, 2000. Six students from Korea came to Hawaii to participate in the program. The students learned English in and out of the classroom. The classroom sessions focused on all English language skill areas with a communicative focus. Communication skills were augmented with one-on-one conversation partner activities where students were given a chance to practice the English they learned in class with native English speakers. In addition, students took a special class about American culture.

The students rounded out their studies outside of the classroom with fieldwork activities. This unique program allows students to explore many historically and culturally interesting places around the island of Oahu. Thus, students enjoyed a very culturally and academically enriching experience.

CAPE would like to send a big mahalo to Loryn Gum, Sandra Larsen, Jed Lovingfoss and Yoneko Narita. Without these outstanding lecturers, this program would not have been such a success.

The 28th International Program for College Students

The 28th International Program for College Students held February 21-March 18, 2000, was attended by six students from Osaka, Kyoto, Gifu, Fukuoka and Nishinomiya Japan. The students attended classes in the morning and participated in fieldwork activities that took them all around the island of Oahu in the afternoon and on weekends. Several teachers, giving students the opportunity to experience a variety of teaching styles, taught the morning English classes. Students covered English reading, writing, grammar, listening and pronunciation with a special emphasis on speaking and communication. In addition to English, they took a course that taught them about American culture and practiced their English with native-speaking conversation partners.

In their free time, students experienced many of Oahu’s attractions, including: The State Capitol, Iolani Palace, Sea Life Park, The Bishop Museum, The Honolulu Zoo and many more. Although it was academically challenging, the students’ experience in Honolulu was also well rounded.

We would like to extend a warm mahalo to everyone involved in this program. We would especially like to thank our lecturers, Joann Kadooka, Christine Kirk-Kuwaye and Yoneko Narita, without whom none of this would have been possible.
The 29th International Program for College Students

Participants in the 29th International Program for College Students with Mr. Jed Lovingfoss, Mr. David Courson, Mr. John Kahle, Mr. Andrea Heller and Mr. Carrie Desmond, July-August 2000.

A multi-cultural group of 51 Asian students attended the 29th International Program for College Students held July 31- August 26, 2000. The students spent four weeks in Hawaii, learning English and American culture, as well as, participating in conversation partner sessions and fieldwork activities. The group consisted of college students from Korea, Japan and Taiwan, including two repeat students from Japan and Korea. Among the diverse group of students were six medical students from Kanazawa Medical University in Japan. CAPE accommodated the medical students by providing special lectures on medicine and visits to several area health facilities.

The students took daily English classes given by David Courson, Carrie Desmond, Priscilla Faucette, Andreas Heller, Karen Hile, and John Kahle. In addition to English, students also studied American culture with Jed Lovingfoss and practiced the skills learned in class with native English speaking conversation partners.

Outside of the classroom, students completed many fieldwork tasks, which allowed them to learn more about the island of Oahu and the many activities it has to offer. After visiting attractions such as: The Honolulu Zoo, Sea Life Park, Pearl Harbor, Punchbowl National Cemetery, Iolani Palace, the Polynesian Cultural Center and many beaches and shopping areas, the students completed daily fieldwork assignments which asked questions intended to increase the students observation skills.

This group of students also had several unique opportunities to expand their cultural horizons. First, students lived in a dormitory on the University of Hawaii campus, so they frequently interacted and formed friendships with American university students.

Due to the international mix of the classroom, they also were able to culturally interact with students from other Asian countries. During the four weeks, the students learned a lot about other cultures through their new friends.

The medical students had many unique experiences. They had a special orientation at the University of Hawaii School of Medicine and special lectures on medicine. In addition, students visited Queen’s Medical Center and Kuakini Medical Center to see how American hospitals operate.

CAPE would like to extend a mahalo to the people who made this session so dynamic. CAPE would like to thank all of the CAPE lecturers and the speakers on issues in medicine: Ruth Ota, Chief of the Public Health Nursing Branch at the Hawaii State Department of Health; Vincent Aoki, MD, Honolulu District Post Office; and Gordon Greene, associate Professor at the University of Hawaii School of Medicine. CAPE would also like to give a special thanks to Tomoko Mohideen, International Patient Relations Assistant at the Queen’s Medical Center and Donna Spiker, Director of Public Relations at Kuakini Medical Center. In addition, mahalo to Dr. Eun-mi Seo from Howon University and Dr. Sunoak Kim from Joongbu University for sending their students. Thanks to all of you, the students had a very fruitful experience and returned home culturally enriched.

The 24th International Program for Nursing Students

Participants in the 24th Program for Nursing Students with Dr. Robert Anders and Dr. Jillian Inouye, January 2000.

Nine students from nursing schools all over Korea attended The 24th International Program for Nursing Students, held from January 17-29, 2000. This comprehensive program allowed students to study English, American culture and a diverse array of topics in nursing. Faculty members from the University of Hawaii School of Nursing presented on topics such as, “An Overview of Healthcare Delivery System in Hawaii,” “Emerging Opportunities for Nursing in the 21st Century,” “Philosophy of the Structure of the School of Nursing,” and “Community Health Nursing and Ethics in Nursing.” Students were given the opportunity to tour the University of Hawaii School of Nursing and meet their American counterparts. Later, nursing students from Korea and Hawaii shared their experiences at a pizza party at Pizza Hut sponsored by the UH Nursing Student Body.

In addition to classroom sessions, students visited several local health facilities. Through visits to Diamond Head Health Center, One Kalakaua Senior Living, Queen’s Medical Center and St. Francis Medical Center, students gained a broad perspective on healthcare facilities in Hawaii. Students were even able to shadow a nurse and observe at Queen’s or St. Francis Medical Center, giving them new, global perspectives on nursing.

Although busy, students found time to converse with native English speaking conversation partners and visit many sites around Oahu. Students went to the State Capitol, Iolani Palace, Sea Life Park and Hanuama Bay, with an optional trip to the Polynesian Cultural Center.

CAPE appreciates the efforts of the many instructors who helped make this unique and popular program a success. CAPE would like to say thanks to lecturers: Yoneko Narita and Jed Lovingfoss and Dean Rosanne Harrigan, Ute Goldkuhle, Jillian Inouye, Joanne Itano, Barbara Kooker and Lois Magnussen, Professors of Nursing at the University of Hawaii School of Nursing. Another appreciative mahalo is offered to: Linda Chung, Staff Support Manager at St. Francis Medical Center; Barbara Ideta, Administrator at One Kalakaua Senior Living; Sharon Keith, Instructor at Patient Care Counseling Services and Tomoko Mohideen, International Patient Relations Assistant, The Queen’s Medical Center; Charlene Ono, Public Health Nursing Supervisor, Diamond Head Health center; and Ruth Ono, Vice-President of The Queen’s Health Systems.

The 25th International Program for Nursing Students

The 25th International Program for Nurses held July 31-August 13, 2000 was attended by nine nursing students from Korea and Japan. Accompanying the students was Professor Satori Kakemoto, who served as a chaperone. The students studied English, as well as, American culture and gained valuable information about nursing in the United States from lectures, on-site visits and shadowing. In addition, the nursing students had the opportunity to befriend and interact with their American counterparts at the University of Hawaii School of Nursing at a pizza party at Pizza Hut. The students also spent time with other University of Hawaii students who served as conversation partners.

Many topics related to the field of nursing were covered in special lectures. Some of these topics were: “Introduction to Healthcare in Hawaii,” given by Dianne Ishida; “Emerging Opportunities for Nursing in the 21st Century,” given by Barbara Kooker; and “Health Assessment,” given by Dorothy Motoyama. Additional topics related to the University of Hawaii School of Nursing, such as “Philosophy and Structure of the School of Nursing,” by Rosanne Harrigan were given during the students’ tour of the School of Nursing.

The students had the opportunity to tour several medical facilities around Oahu. The students visited Diamond Head Health Center, The Queen’s Medical Center and One Kalakaua Senior Living. This gave students the chance to observe how several fully functioning American health facilities operate. This was a unique cultural experience which broadened the students’ perspectives about their field.

In addition to tours, students were able to experience what it is like to be a nurse in Hawaii by shadowing a staff nurse. In this special program, students spent the morning at Queen’s Medical Center, St. Francis Medical Center or Kaiser Hospital following a nurse and learning what duties and roles American nurses must perform in their day-to-day life and how they go about their work. This was an invaluable experience for the students which increased their cultural awareness.

CAPE would like to say mahalo to everyone involved in the workshop. Special thanks go to David Courson, who taught the English classes, Jed Lovingfoss, who taught the American Culture class, and special lecturer Dorothy Motoyama, the former Director of Nursing Education at Kauai Medical Center. Also, CAPE is grateful for the continued participation of the University of Hawaii School of Nursing and Dean Harrigan and Professors Dianne Ishida, Joanne Itano, Barbara Kooker and Lois Magnussen for participating in the lecture series and School of Nursing Orientation, and the students for their continued aloha. Also, thanks to all those who helped with the medical facility visitations: Judith Castillo, Assistant Hospital Administrator at Kaiser Permanente; Barbara Ideta, Executive Director at One Kalakaua Senior Living; Sharon Keith, Instructor, Patient Care Counseling Services, Queen’s Medical Center; Tomoko Mohideen, International Patient Relations Assistant at The Queen’s Medical Center; Charlene Ono, Public Health Nursing Supervisor, Diamond Head Health Center, Dr. Ruth Ono, Vice President of the Queen’s Health systems and Allan Walz, Staff Development Coordinator at St. Francis Medical Center. The students and CAPE appreciate all your efforts and commitment to the program.

The 16th International Program for High School Students

Participants in the 16th International Program for High School Students with Joann Kadooka and Ms. Mayumi Tabuchi, March-April 2000.

Sixteen participants from Kyoto, Japan attended the 16th International Program for High School Students held March 22-April 4, 2000. The students attended communicatively focused English classes taught by CAPE lecturer Joann Kadooka.

They further enhanced their communication skills by practicing with their conversation partners and exploring the island of Oahu.

The Japanese high school students had the unique opportunity to befriend American high school students from Kaimuki High School who acted as the students’ conversation partners. The CAPE students also had the opportunity to visit Kaimuki High School and experience life in an American high school firsthand. Both the Japanese and American students learned a lot about each other’s customs. The exchange was a culturally enriching experience for all involved.

The high school students also participated in many fieldwork projects that gave them the opportunity to see many different parts of Oahu. Students enjoyed a wide variety of the island’s beaches, parks, museums, historical sites and opportunities for shopping. One of the highlights was a circle island tour followed by an aloha lunch that took place on the students’ first weekend in Hawaii.

CAPE would like to say Mahalo to all the teachers and conversation partners as well as Mary Anne Lopez, the principal of Cathedral School, for allowing the students to visit the school and participate in school life.

A friendly mahalo is extended to CAPE lecturer Joann Kadooka, as well as the administration and students of Kaimuki High School for being so accommodating to the students.

The 17th International Program for Middle and High School Students

Participants in the 17th International Program for High School Students with Mr. Andrea Heller.

In summer 2000, 10 students from Korea and Japan gathered in Hawaii to attend the 17th International Program for Middle and High School Students from July 31-August 12, 2000. The students’ daily English classes were supplemented with conversation partner activities, fieldwork sessions and an all day visit to an American school. Students also enjoyed the opportunity to learn about their classmates’ cultures.

The students had three English teachers: Carrie Desmond, Andreas Heller and Jed Lovingfoss. Out of the classroom, the students had special sessions with their conversation partners, native English speakers who helped the students sharpen the English conversation skills learned in the classroom. The students also did numerous fieldwork activities that took them to many places on Oahu, such as Bishop Museum, Honolulu Academy of Arts, Arizona Memorial, shopping and the beach.

The highlight of the program was a visit to Cathedral School where the students were able to spend an entire day as a student at an American high school. The students observed and interacted in a variety of classes. They were able to spend time with their American peers during lunchtime and while playing games together. It was a culturally enriching experience for all involved.

CAPE would like to say Mahalo to all the teachers and conversation partners as well as Mary Anne Lopez, the principal of Cathedral School, for allowing the students to visit the school and participate in school life.
CAPE Fellowships/Scholarships

To celebrate the first year of the new millennium — and our anniversary — CAPE was pleased to be able to award 31 scholarships to help minimize the financial strain of very deserving participants from Japan, Korea, the Philippines and the U.S. We were proud to be able to award even more scholarships this year than we did last year. Also, CAPE was delighted to continue to support faculty and graduate student research in several departments of the University of Hawaii. As always, the availability of scholarships was made possible by the generosity of CAPE supporters.

A heartfelt thank you goes out to our friends far and near who supported CAPE during this millennium anniversary year. Mahalo for allowing us to award so many scholarships and for making our anniversary celebrations a success. Support was especially meaningful given the lingering effects of the Asian economic crisis, which are still being felt by our organizations and businesses throughout Asia. Your continued support is recognized and appreciated. As we look forward into the coming years of the new millennium and CAPE’s next 20 years, we have ambitious plans to develop even more programs as we expand on our highly successful existing programs. We plan to be even better equipped to serve the educational and professional needs of the Asian-Pacific community. In addition, we are still working on gathering enough funds to erect the planned CAPE Center on the site where the current CAPE home is located. We would like to extend a warm Mahalo to each of the following contributors for support received through December 31, 2000.

2001 Summer Programs

Exciting Programs Ahead!

American Literature and American Society: Politics, Ideology, History

The 21st Annual American Studies Forum
August 1 - 9, 2001

Other Speakers:

• Dr. Leslie Bow, Associate Professor of English at the University of Miami.

• Dr. Deane Neubauer, Professor of Political Science and former Dean, College of Social Science, University of Hawaii.

• Dr. James Dator, Professor and head of the Alternative Futures Options in the Department of Political Science, University of Hawaii.

Featured Topics:

This forum will consider American political and literary cultures, paying particular attention to precepts of citizenship, representation, and social justice. The issues and problems confronting America in the 21st century, we will suggest, can best be explored by engaging in cultural study of the past. The materials we will examine are varied and inter-disciplinary, including literature, film, music and art.

• Questions of Citizenship
• The Literature of Poverty
• The Frontier in Global Context
• American Popular Culture: Ideology and Critique
• African American Literatures: Legacies of Freedom and Memory
• The Transnational Future of America and American Literature

Special Topics

• Interpreting the American Election of November 2000 in a Global Context
• Growing Income Inequalities and their Effects on American Society
• Economic and Political Prospects of the Pacific Century
• Alternative Visions of America’s Future

The 29th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English
July 31 - August 10, 2001

Distinguished Speakers

• Dr. Craig Chaudron, Professor and Graduate Chair Department of Second Language Studies at the University of Hawaii.

• Dr. Graham Crookes, Associate Professor in the Department of Second Language Studies at the University of Hawaii.

• Dr. Roderick A. Jacobs, Professor and Interim Dean of the College of Languages, Linguistics, and Literature at the University of Hawaii.

• Dr. Richard Schmidt, Professor in the Department of Second Language Studies and Director of the National Foreign Language Research Center at the University of Hawaii.

Topics

• Teaching writing Skills
• Motivating Foreign Language Learners
• Teaching Listening and Speaking Skills
• EFL Methodology: Teaching EFL Skills

• Psycho-Sociolinguistics and Language Teaching
• Classroom Research for Language Teachers: Current Findings
• Resources for EFL Teachers: Finding Texts, Research, Materials, Keypals, and Others
• Teaching English Reading Skills
• Testing and Evaluation in EFL
• Teaching English Through English
