Politics and religion. The two tend to precariously coexist, and have always had some influence over, and relation to, one another. This is especially true today, and in our next Asia Today Series, respected scholars will discuss Confucianism, Islam, and Christianity and how they influence and shape the global political arena. Tell a friend and reserve your seats today for this thought-provoking and educational series!

This year's topics are:

- Confucianism: Religion and Politics in Sinitic East Asia
- Islam: Politics and Islamic Authority in the 21st Century
- Christianity: Christianity and Politics

The Series will be held on three consecutive Saturdays: April 28, and May 5 & 12, from 9:00 a.m. to 12 noon at the University of Hawaii Campus Center Room #220.

countries to help them defray their expenses. Neither the scholarship funds nor the programs' success could have been possible without the generous support of CAPE's network of friends and helpers. Thank you all.

The 26th Annual American Studies Forum featured Dr. Russ Castronovo (English and American Studies, University of Wisconsin-Madison) speaking on the interconnections between aesthetics, violence, and literature. In a series of lectures that considered writers from Thomas Payne to Langston Hughes, Dr. Castronovo considered how an elusive concept such as aesthetic values has provided a prime territory for conflicting political agendas in the literary history of the United States. In addition, Dr. Leslie Bow (English and Asian American Studies, University of Wisconsin-Madison), Dr. Paul Lyons (English, University of Hawaii) and Dr. Deane Neubauer (Political Science, University of Hawaii) gave a series of short seminars focusing on how "non-black" minorities were affected by segregation in the U.S., how some American writers portray the people and lands of Oceania in their work, and how the "centralist" nature of American politics contrasts with the more extreme politics of "left" and "right" in other countries. This was a very well-received American Studies Forum.

Continuing one of CAPE's most highly attended and successful programs, the Workshops for English Teachers this year hosted 71 teachers from Hong Kong, Japan, Thailand and Korea. 21 of these teachers were funded for the fourteenth consecutive year by the Yongok Scholarship Foundation. For the third consecutive year, a group of graduate students from the International Graduate School of English in Korea participated in a workshop held over the winter break. One reason for the success of these Workshops is the expertise of highly regarded faculty from the University of Hawaii. Without the world-class scholarship and teaching prowess of these UH faculty, this program could not enjoy the popularity that it does.

The Home-Care Workshop, attended by 23 nurses and nurse-educators, provided lectures on modern health-care issues and practices, as well as arranged visits to local facilities for the nurses to meet their professional colleagues and observe them at work. In the fall, the Workshop for Clinical Nurse Specialists hosted 38 participants who studied clinical nursing. They had an inside look at U.S. hospital practices when they shadowed preceptors at their places of work in several medical facilities in Honolulu. CAPE's nursing workshops are a unique and important part of its educational offering, and have received many positive responses from participants about the benefits of attending.

CAPE's largest and most frequently-offered programs are the English-language programs for students from the junior high school through university levels. In 2006, CAPE hosted nearly 230 students from Japan and Korea, including 90 university students and 70 nursing participants from nursing programs intent on providing their future nurses with improved language skills. All of these students followed similar programs of morning classes, covering a wide variety of classes from straight English conversation and grammar, to the basics of hula dancing. Their afternoons were spent exploring Oahu (and beyond, if they wished, on the weekends), visiting places of cultural and historic importance such as the Arizona Memorial at Pearl Harbor and the Iolani Palace. Their homework often required them to speak to local residents, encouraging students to practice their language skills in real-world situations with real people. CAPE considers providing these kinds of cross-cultural experiences as central to its mission of improving international relations, two people at a time.

The semi-annual Asia-Pacific Studies Forums met with positive responses as well. In the spring, the "Asia Today Series" featured the nations of China, Japan, Mongolia, and Pacific Oceania. The fall "Language and Culture Seminar" let participants learn about the religions and performance traditions of Japan and China; the third Saturday of the series focused on the language history, culture and social issues of Cambodia, a country still struggling to recover from the devastating effects of war in the 20th century. CAPE is proud to have offered such a variety of quality seminars to the residents of Honolulu, its home community.

Thanks to generous donor support, in 2006, CAPE was able to provide 51 scholarships for visiting students from the Philippines, Japan, Korea, and the U.S. These awards ranged from full tuition waivers to merit awards, housing scholarships, and one graduate student fellowship award to the Department of American Studies at the University of Hawaii at Manoa.

We continue to do our best to provide quality programs to students visiting our shores for a few weeks or months, and to members of the local community here in Hawaii. All of our programs at CAPE are specifically intended to foster international exchange and friendship, and to create people who will help lead the world to a peaceful future. We maintain an extensive alumni network that grows larger with the completion of every program, and we hope all of you will use it to help us improve our programs, nurture friendships, and continue in your professional growth. CAPE also continues its fundraising efforts to build a new CAPE building, a multi-purpose facility that will house our offices, classrooms and space for conferences and gatherings. This goal still lies some way off in the future, but we believe that with hope, effort, and a forward-looking approach, we will some day reach it.

As always, we finish this annual report with our heartfelt thanks for the support and generosity of all our friends and donors. You live all over the world, and your encouragement makes it possible for us to pursue our vision of contributing to the creation of a better world in the 21st century. We send our thanks to the faculty of the University of Hawaii, instructors, visiting speakers, English teachers, nursing instructors, hospital- and medical-facility staffs, principals and teachers of visited schools, home stay hosts, volunteers and community members who make our work such a pleasure, and who make our students feel so welcome in Hawaii.

The 17th Language and Culture Seminar

In 2006, the featured countries were China, Japan, and Cambodia. Mr. Nicholas Logue, a Chinese Stage Combat Teacher at Mid Pacific High School, gave a wonderfully received and riveting presentation on “Chinese Theater from a Western Perspective.” Dr. Lee Siegel presented a special lecture on “Religion and Humor,” and Dr. Julie Iezzi talked about “Kyogen:

Medieval Japanese Comedy Alive and Well in the 21st Century.” Dr. Cynthia Ning helped participants in “Understanding Chinese Social Conventions Through Chinese Comedy,” and Dr. Chhany Sak-Humphry gave a lecture on “Cambodia: Language, Culture, and Social Issues.”

A great big Mahalo is extended to all seminar lecturers, whose presentations were met enthusiastically by community members. “Wonderful,” “engaging,” and “informative,” were just some of the words used to describe these lectures. For more informative seminars offered by CAPE free of charge to Hawaii residents, please see accompanying article on the upcoming Asia Today Series, or visit us online at www.cape.edu.

2007 American Studies

The 2007 American Studies Forum will focus on contemporary American society, looking at the wide range of ethnic, racial, and religious categories that comprise the American people, and asking what role these have played in the broad changes in American life in the past quarter century. This year’s featured speaker, Dr. Norman Yetman, will take the lead in exploring the ways in which the forces of globalization have contributed to creating the increasingly diverse society of the United States in the 21st century.

Dr. Yetman, Professor of American Studies and Sociology at the University of Kansas, has long taught and researched the issues involving race, ethnicity, immigration, religion and sport in American life. He was the featured speaker at this Forum in 1997, and returns this year to take stock and re-assess the ideas and theories he presented ten years ago. His lectures promise to be informative, both on how life in the U.S. has changed in the last decade, and on how his own thinking on it has changed in the same time.

In addition to Dr. Yetman, Dr. Deane Neubauer, Professor Emeritus of Political Science at the University of Hawaii, will give a special lecture examining how globalization has impacted the U.S. during the last ten years.

The 26th Annual American Studies Forum

American Aesthetics: Art, Violence, and Literature in the U.S.

The featured topic for last summer’s American Studies Forum was “American Aesthetics: Art, Violence, and Literature in the United States.” Nine participants from Japan, Korea, Philippines, and the U.S. attended the forum.

The featured speaker was Dr. Russ Castronovo, Professor of English and American Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Dr. Castronovo and other distinguished scholars presented lectures on a number of intriguing topics in the field of American Studies. Topics presented by Dr. Castronovo included: “Common Sense and Revolution,” “Literature and the Art of Social Government,” “Lynching and Aesthetics,” “Anarchy, Internationalism, and American Literature,” and “Globalization and American Literature.” Dr. Leslie Bow, Associate Professor of English and Director of the Asian American Studies Program at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, presented “Racial Intersituality and the Jim Crow Era.” “U.S. Writers in Oceania” was discussed by Dr. Paul Lyons, Associate Professor of English at the University of Hawaii. Dr. Deane Neubauer, Emeritus Professor of Political Science at the University of Hawaii and Senior Advisor to the Education Program at the East-West Center, explored “The Contest for Hearts and Minds: Will the Political Center Hold in American Politics?”

Scholars from Japan, Korea, the Philippines, and the United States at the 26th American Studies Forum with featured speaker Dr. Russ Castronovo, August 2006.

Two participants also made presentations at the forum: Dr. Masao Hando, Professor of English at Niigata Institute of Technology, talked about “Prejudice, Justice and Love: Snow Falling on Cedars by David Guterson;” and Dr. Sang-Wook Shim of Jeonju University discussed “Pearl S. Buck’s Religious View as a Secular Missionary.”

Attending scholars had the afternoons free to do individual research or sightseeing. Many of them took this opportunity to broaden their horizons and learn about the Hawaiian and American cultures.

CAPE would like to extend a warm Mahalo to Drs. Castronovo, Bow, Lyons, and Neubauer for their excellent lectures and for contributing greatly to the success of this flagship forum.

The 42nd Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English

Thirteen teachers from Hong Kong, Japan, Korea, and Thailand attended this workshop, sponsored by CAPE in cooperation with the University of Hawaii Second Language Studies (UH SLS) Department.

The teachers participated in a diverse range of courses designed to impart knowledge of the latest techniques and research related to English Language teaching and promote a cross-cultural dialogue on the effective teaching of English as a Foreign Language, including: EFL Methodology; Teaching EFL Skills; Testing & Evaluation in EFL; Teaching Casual Conversation in the EFL Classroom; Teaching Listening & Speaking Skills; Language, Culture, and ESL; Teaching Writing Skills; Teaching English Reading Skills; Extensive Reading; Helping Students to Become EFL Reader; Telling Stories: Accounts of personal experience and other forms of extended discourse; Motivating Foreign Language Learners; and Psycho-Sociolinguistics and Language Teaching. The presenters for these seminars included respected scholars and faculty of the UH SLS Department: the late Dr. Craig Chaudron, Dr. Richard Day, Dr. Roderick Jacobs, Dr. Richard Schmidt, and Dr. Dina Yoshimi.

Participants also explored the many cultural activities Hawaii has to offer. They took in the beauty of Hawaii beaches, learned about a point in Hawaii's history at the Arizona Memorial, and enjoyed the shows at Polynesian Cultural Center.

CAPE would like to thank the UH SLS Department for their significant contributions to this popular workshop.

The 43rd Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English

This workshop, sponsored by the Seoul Metropolitan Office of Education, brought sixteen teachers from Seoul, Korea to Hawaii from July 24-August 21, 2006.

The workshop focused on three components: classes taught by University of Hawaii Second Language Studies faculty, classroom observations and interactions with American elementary, middle, and high schools, and a Homestay component that lasted the entire length of the program.

Classes included topics such as: Teaching Technique; Teaching Communicative English: Issues and Problems; Developing Comprehension Questions; Using the Computer and Internet to Teach EFL; Developing Interactional Competence for EFL Learners; and Literature in the EFL Classroom.

Participants spent one week in observation and interaction with their American counterparts and students at local schools. They visited Dole

English teachers at the 43rd Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English with Dr. Roderick Jacobs, and Dr. Richard Schmidt, and Mr. Kenton Harsch, August 2006

Middle School, Lunalilo Elementary School, Puuhale Elementary School, Roosevelt High School, and Washington Intermediate School, where they were warmly received and built cross-cultural connections with American teachers, faculty, and students. The time spent with their American counterparts provided a valuable and rewarding experience for all participants.

By living in a Homestay arrangement for the entire length of the workshop, participants had the opportunity to live with an American family and partake in everyday life in the U.S.: eating meals together, doing household chores, and sharing and learning about one another's cultures. Participants gained a greater understanding of local and American cultures, a precious experience that can not be provided through any other means.

A special thank you goes out to all who helped make this workshop a success: University of Hawaii faculty Dr. Graham Crookes, Dr. Richard Day, Mr. Kenton Harsch, Dr. Roderick A. Jacobs, Ms. Jinhwa Lee, Dr. Richard W. Schmidt, and Dr. Dina Yoshimi; Hawaii Pacific University Assistant Professor Dr. Hanh Thi Nguyen; Mr. Dong-Wan Kang; and Principals Mr. Calvin Nomiya, Mr. Michael Harano, Mr. Dennis Hokama, Mr. Myron Monte, and Mr. Dean Nakamoto. CAPE would also like to thank Hawaii Homestay and their families for opening their homes to our participants.

The 43rd International Program for College Students (TESL)

Participants in the 43rd International Program for College Students (TESL) with Dr. Richard Schmidt, Mr. Daniel Silver, Mr. Kenton Harsch, and the late Dr. Craig Chaudron, August 2006.

For the second year in a row, eighteen students from Hankuk University of Foreign Languages arrived in Hawaii on June 21, 2006 to begin their three-week intensive study of the English language. In addition to English language classes, students also attended classes taught by renowned faculty of the University of Hawaii Second Language Studies Department (UH SLS).

These classes, geared towards students in the field of Teaching English as a Second Language, focused on topics such as Teaching Technique; Developing Teaching Material; Teaching Listening and Speaking Skills; Observation and Analysis of Classroom Interaction - Discourse Analysis and Other Approaches; Strategies for Teaching Pronunciation to Young Learners; Task-Based Language Teaching; and Extensive Reading in the ESL Classroom. Students also went sightseeing around the island to notable places such as Hanauma Bay, Bishop Museum, and the Honolulu zoo.

A successful feature of this program was the two-day visit to Maryknoll School, during which students conducted observations of classes for an entire school day, and also had the opportunity to further interact with Maryknoll teachers, faculty, and students in after school activities. CAPE students gained valuable experience during their observations and interactions and returned home with warm memories of their visit to Maryknoll.

CAPE would like to sincerely thank UH SLS faculty: The late Dr. Craig Chaudron, Dr. Richard Day, Dr. Robert Gibson, Ms. Jinhwa Lee, Mr. Kenton Harsch, and Dr. Richard Schmidt; CAPE Lecturer Mr. Daniel Silver; and Maryknoll School's Director of Special Programs Mr. Dan Nagami, for their contributions to this program.

The 44th International Program for College Students

Summer 2006 brought a diverse group of twelve students from Korea and Japan to Hawaii to improve their English language skills during July 31-August 26, 2006.

In the classroom, students learned English in a communicative environment and developed listening, speaking, and writing, and presentation skills. They also attended special sessions on American and Hawaiian culture that increased their awareness of cultural norms and fostered inter-cultural communication.

Outside of the classroom, students completed a variety of fieldwork activities that took them to places of educational, historical, and cultural interest around Oahu while also giving them opportunities to concretely apply what they learned in class in "real world" situations.

Students from Kanazawa Medical University, regular participants in CAPE's summer program for college students, also visited Kuakini Medical Center and Tripler Army Medical Center as a part of their program, and attended a special lecture given by Mrs. Ruth Ota, Chief of the Public Health Nursing Branch of Hawaii's Department of Health.

CAPE would like to thank Dr. Pat Nishimoto, Mrs. Ruth Ota, and Ms. Donda Spiker, for their involvement and assistance in this program. CAPE would also like to thank Ms. Alison Hartle, Ms. Loryn Gum, Mr. Jed Lovingfoss, Ms. Eleanor McManuels, and Dr. Clifford Uejio for helping to make this program a success.

Participants in the 34th Program for College Nursing Students (Kyungbok) with Ms. Loryn Gum, Eleanor McManuels, and Dr. Jung-Ae Kim, June/July 2006.

CAPE's program for college nursing students combines the concepts of two of our successful program offerings (English language classes and practical healthcare forums) into one unique program that enables students in the field of nursing to learn about the U.S. healthcare system while strengthening English language skills in a multi-cultural environment.

The first group of twenty-six students from Catholic University, Injje University, Kosin University, and Kyungbuk National University, and accompanied by Prof. Jina Oh of Injje University, studied in Hawaii during June 26-July 22. The second group of twenty-one college nursing students from Kyungbok College, chaperoned by Prof. June-Ae Kim, came to Hawaii during June 17-July 16.

Mornings were filled with English classes, nursing and healthcare related presentations, and sessions on American and Hawaiian culture. Students also spent a day with University of Hawaii School of Nursing professionals and received a complete overview of the UH Nursing Department, as well as a tour of its facilities and classrooms.

Students visited several healthcare facilities around the island to experience for themselves what it's like to work in a U.S. healthcare facility. They toured Straub Clinic & Hospital and Maluhia Hospital; conducted observation and shadowing of local nurses at Straub, Kuakini Medical Center, and St. Francis Medical Center; and interacted with residents of Pohai Nani Retirement Center, a special and touching experience that deeply impacted both students and residents.

Of course, sightseeing was included in the agenda, and students explored Diamond Head, Arizona Memorial, and Sea Life Park, among others.

Many thanks are extended to the following individuals for their assistance in the success of this program: Dr. Mary G. Boland, Dean, School of Nursing, University of Hawaii; Dr. John Casken, Director, International Program, School of Nursing, UH; Mr. Jay Duquette, Administrator, Maluhia Hospital; Ms. Verna Hanashiro, Assistant Professor of Nursing, Hawaii Pacific University; Ms. Gayle Igarashi, Maluhia Hospital; Dr. Jillian Inouye, Chair, Graduate Program, UH School of Nursing; Dr. Joanne Itano, Chair, Dept. of Nursing, University of Hawaii; Ms. Jeanne Jones, Staff Development Coordinator, St. Francis Medical Center; Mrs. Edwina Lee, Chief Nurse Executive, Straub Clinic & Hospital; Dr. Lois Magnussen, Professor of Nursing, School of Nursing, University of Hawaii; Ms. Carolyn Morrison, Director of Marketing, Pohai Nani Retirement Center; Ms. Gayle Oshima, Education Service, Kuakini Medical Center; and Ms. Lily Ochoko, Supervisor, West Oahu Public Health Nursing Section, Department of Health. The 25th International Program for Middle/High School Students

During the summer of 2006, twenty-eight high school students from Maekoe High School in Korea flew to Hawaii to attend the 25th International Program for Middle/High School Students from July 20-August 3, 2006. Daily English classes were supplemented with American and Hawaiian culture classes, fieldwork sessions, and an all-day visit to Kaimuki High School (for the boys) and St. Francis School (for the girls).

Outside of the classroom, students were encouraged to apply their English skills to complete fieldwork assignments, which took them to many places on Oahu, such as the State Capitol, Academy of Arts, and Sea Life Park. Students also enjoyed a beautiful sunset cruise along the Oahu shoreline.

Participants in the 25th International Program for Middle/High School Students with Mr. Stuart Sakoeki, Ms. Alison Hartle, Ms. Eleanor McManuels, Sr. Bun-Sun Kang, Mr. Bong-Ho Kim, and Mr. Il-Sik Ko, July/August 2006.

The highlights of the program were visits to Kaimuki and St. Francis Schools, where students experienced a typical day at an American high school. They observed and participated in a variety of classes and spent time with their local American peers during breaks and lunchtime. It was a culturally enriching experience for all involved.

CAPE would like to say Mahalo to all the teachers for their quality instruction: Ms. Ceylon Canning, Mr. Kevin Gregorek, Ms. Loryn Gum, Ms. Alison Hartle, Ms. Eleanor McManuels, Mr. Stuart Sakoeki, and Mr. Daniel Silver. CAPE would also like to thank Mr. Ronald Oyama, Vice Principal of Kaimuki High School; and Ms. Karen Curry, Director of Admissions, and Sr. Joan of Arc Souza, Principal of St. Francis School, for allowing CAPE students to visit their schools and participate in school life.

The 11th Workshop for Clinical Nurse Specialists

Participants in the Eleventh Workshop for Clinical Nurse Specialists with Dr. Pat Nishimoto, Sr. Inja Yoo, Ms. Jung-Sook Cho, and Ms. Moon-Jin Kim, November 2006.

Thirty-eight nurses from Korea participated in this unique clinical nurse workshop, held from November 8-18, 2006 in Hawaii. Participants partook in seminars, conducted on-site observations, and completed a preceptorship at health care facilities on Oahu.

Presentations by esteemed professionals in the healthcare industry covered a variety of topics, including: Introduction to Health Care in Hawaii; Clinical Nurse Specialists: Case Management; Clinical Nurse Specialists in Action; Pain and Palliative Care at Queen's; Role of the Neuro CNS at Queen's; Nursing Informatics; The Roles of the RN, CNS, and Nurse Practitioner; and Clinical Nurse Specialists: Risk Management.

Tours, visits, and observations were conducted on-site for participants to gain a broader understanding of American healthcare facilities and practices, as well as to promote cross-cultural exchange between countries. The preceptorship training/shadowing, an integral component of this workshop, enabled participants to shadow their local American counterpart on the job for a day, deepening the cross-cultural connections and enhancing participants' understanding of clinical nursing in the U.S. On-site tours, observations, and preceptorships were conducted at: Kalihi-Palama Medical Center, Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children, Kuakini Medical Center, Maunalani Nursing and Rehab Center, Pohai Nani Retirement Center, St. Francis Medical Center, Straub Clinic and Hospital, and The Queen's Medical Center.

This workshop could not have been done without the assistance of the following individuals for their coordination of on-site visits: Ms. Sai Chantavy, Administrator, Maunalani Nursing & Rehab Center; Ms. Kimberly Fuke, CMHC Manager, Kalihi-Palama Metal Health Center; Ms. Monica Ivey, Public Affairs Office, The Queen's Medical Center; Ms. Linda James, Administrative Secretary, Queen Emma Nursing Institute; Ms. Glenda Kaalakea, Director of Nursing, Straub Clinic & Hospital; Ms. Betty Karratti, Volunteer Service Coordinator, Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children; Dr. Barbara Kooker, Professor of Nursing, School of Nursing, UH; Ms. Carolyn Morrison, Director of Marketing, Pohai Nani Retirement Center; Ms. Lily Ochoco, Supervisor, Oahu Community Mental Health Center; and Ms. Gayle Oshima, Medical/Surgical Clinician, Education Services, Kuakini Medical Center.

Contributed donations in support of principals' visit to Korea.*

We thank all who supported CAPE and its programs in 2006. Your generous and continued support is greatly appreciated. CAPE plans to continue serving the educational and professional development needs of the people of the Asia-Pacific region. We will also continue our work towards obtaining sufficient funds to erect the planned CAPE Center on the site of the current CAPE home.

ASIA PACIFIC COLLEGE NEWS

APC will greet the first cohort of students in its Master's in Intercultural Leadership (MIL) program on June 2, 2007, for the first semester, running through August 19, 2007.

Students will be enrolled in two courses, Leadership Theory and Practice (APC 501) and Politics of Asia and the Pacific (APC 520). These are conducted entirely on-line, and interested readers can sample a lesson from APC 510 (to be offered in Fall 2007) at <http://apc.mrooms.net/login/index.php>. Faculty for these courses are recruited from the University of Hawaii and other accredited institutions. APC is pleased to provide highly qualified and knowledgeable experts as the teachers of its on-lines courses.

The application deadline for the summer semester is April 1, 2007. Those interested in applying can download an application from the website at <http://www.apchawaii.org/>.

All the courses for the MIL are offered on-line, making them available to anyone, anywhere in the world. Generous donations enable APC to offer full tuition waivers. This is a great opportunity to learn more about the issues of leadership in the politically, culturally, and economically diverse Pacific region. Come join us!
